Dear Colleagues,

I'd like to welcome you to the ISA World Congress which will take place in Gothenburg next month. You'll see our final program at the Congress in this Newsletter. All our sessions from Monday (July 12) to Saturday (17) will be held in the room F6 (expo-hall) in the Congress Hall of the Swedish Exhibition & Congress Centre (Svenska Massen). We'll also have our business meeting and presidential election in the same room at 17:45 to 19:45, Thursday, July 15. Followed will be our cocktail party at 20:00 to 22:00 in a nice area outside the same room. During the cocktail party, Håkan Thörn from Gothenburg University will give a brief summary of the book on (Re)searching Gothenburg that 37 researchers were involved in a comprehensive and thorough research on the city of Gothenburg. Also, Einar Hansson, an architect, who will take care of a tour in downtown Gothenburg for us Saturday afternoon, will be in the cocktail party so that you can sign up for the tour.

I am very much looking forward to seeing you in Gothenburg soon.

Kuniko Fujita ISA-RC21
President June 20, 2010

Letter from the newsletter-editor

Dear readers,

Just a short message from your editor. I have been editing the newsletter for the last four years. I was happy to do this since I do think that a newsletter can still have some use (listing conference programs, archiving RC events, et cetera), even in times of listserv's and other new communications means. In the long run, however, I do think, that RC-21 (well, all RC's) should re-consider the function of a newsletter, if any. Particularly, when our (new!) RC-21 website takes over more and more of the newsletter's role. Therefore, I am glad to continue to serve at the RC-21 board, but not as your newsletter editor anymore.

Regards,
Jan Willem Duyvendak

SEPARATE SOCIETIES

Poverty and Inequality in U.S. Cities
Second Edition

WILLIAM W. GOLDSMITH AND EDWARD J. BLAKELY
Foreword by President Bill Clinton

The award-winning book on urban poverty
—now thoroughly revised and updated

"Economic and political forces no longer combat poverty—they generate poverty!" exclaim William Goldsmith and Edward Blakely in their report on the plight of America's urban poor. In this revised and updated edition of their 1992 book Separate Societies, the authors present a compelling examination of the damaging divisions that isolate poor city minority residents from the middle-class suburban majority. They pay special attention to how the needs of the permanently poor have been unmet through the alternating years of promises and neglect, and propose a progressive turn away from 30 years of conservative policies.

Separate Societies vividly documents how the urban working class has been pushed out of industrial jobs through global economic restructuring, and how the Wall Street meltdown has aggravated underemployment, depleted public services, and sharpened racial and class inequalities.

The authors insist that the current U.S. approach puts Americans out of work and lowers the standard of living for all. As such, Goldsmith and Blakely urge the Obama administration to create better urban policy and foster better metropolitan management to effectively and efficiently promote equality.

William W. Goldsmith is Professor of City and Regional Planning and Director of the Program on International Studies in Planning at Cornell University. He has taught throughout Latin America, and during the Clinton Administration he served on the EPA Clean Air Act Advisory Board.

Edward J. Blakely is Honorary Professor of Urban Policy at the U.S. Studies Centre at the University of Sydney. He ran for Mayor in Oakland in 1998, was Dean at University of Southern California and also at the Milano Graduate School, and most recently served as recovery czar for New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina.
